Our Story

Me to We Style provides “better clothes for a better world” to socially responsible consumers, organizations and companies that want to make a difference through their purchasing habits.

Our product line is domestically manufactured, sweatshop-free and made using certified organic cotton, bamboo and other eco-friendly fabrics.

In addition, 50 percent of our profit goes to our charity partner, Free The Children, to support development projects in rural and impoverished areas across the globe.

Free The Children

Our Charity Partner

Today, more than one billion people around the world live in absolute poverty, on less than $1 a day. 600 million of the world's children live in absolute poverty.

Free The Children is the world's largest network of children helping children through education, with more than one million youth involved in our innovative education and development programs in 45 countries.

Founded by international child rights activist Craig Kielburger, Free The Children has received the World's Children's Prize for the Rights of the Child (also known as the Children's Nobel Prize), the Human Rights Award from the World Association of Non-Governmental Organizations, and has formed successful partnerships with leading school boards across North America.

The primary goals of the organization are to free children from poverty and exploitation and free young people from the notion that they are powerless to effect positive change in the world.

For every dollar donated, 91 cents goes directly to helping children - unprecedented for a children's charity.

Record Of Achievement

Free The Children has a remarkable record of achievement initiating grassroots development projects around the world. Since 1995, Free The Children has:

Improved access to clean water and sanitation for 138,500 people

Distributed more than 207,500 school and health kits to children in need

Built more than 500 schools—providing education to more than 50,000 children every day

Shipped more than $15 million US worth of medical supplies and built health care centres, impacting the lives of more than 512,500 people around the world

Equipped 23,500 women to be economically self-sufficient

Choose the right size

Three easy steps to find the perfect fit:

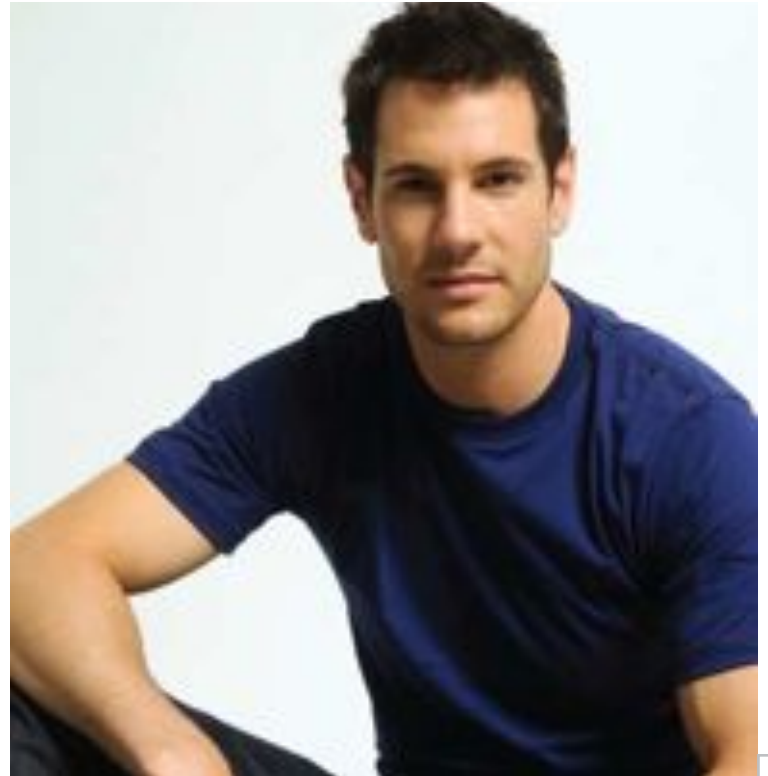

- 1) Take your favourite T-shirt and measure its width from one armpit to the other.
- 2) For sleeve length, measure from your armpit to the end of your wrist.
- 3) Find the matching measurements on the size chart and you've found the perfect fit.
